The V1730 digitizer will be run with unique firmware for performing fast timing measurements with organic scintillators. This firmware implements digital pulse processing algorithms that can achieve electronic timing resolutions on the order of 10 picoseconds. The algorithms are also able to handle very high event rates – up to $\sim 10^6$ triggers per second. Both the fast timing and high trigger rate capability are essential for the research work into which these digitizers will be incorporated: neutron decay spectroscopy experiments where neutron energies are measured from time of flight and where event rates are variable.

Additionally, the V1730 digitizer has a number of unique features that are essential for integration into a neutron detector array with a large number of individual channels and with demanding performance requirements:

- Fast pulse digitization rate (500 MS/s) and 14-bit resolution
- High channel density (16 channels per module)
- Power provided by VME backplane (VME modules are standard at the Cyclotron Institute).
- Data transfer by fiber-optic link
- Significant level of support available from CAEN engineers
- Pre-existing experience and operation knowledge of the V1730 or similar CAEN digitizers by research collaborators.
